PRESIDENT'S CORNER

For over two years I've been carrying around a rubber broom in the back of the Batmobile to prop open the trunk because the back wing is so gosh darn heavy. I also think the get up and go has got up and went out of the old strut lifters. So finally, after looking at a bunch of places, I found a pair for $20 on eBay. The struts connect above to pin that screws into the rear deck and down below to a pin that attaches with two 10 mm screws to the body. I in my haste to remove the top pins, I broke one. I figured I would just run up to Nissan and by a set for the top and bottom fixtures so I wouldn't have to dremel the socket joint to remove the rest of the pins. When I awoke from the sticker shock of these 4 tiny little parts (over $125 and that didn't include the struts), I headed down to Autozone to see what their alternative was. They had a set of Mighty Lift struts that included all 4 connectors for less than the connectors themselves at Nissan. It was easy enough to unscrew the rest of the connections, screw in the new fittings, and attach the new struts. Even in 50 degree weather it was able to push up my massive wing without assistance when it was about 75% open. With all the correct parts disassembly and reassembly it took a total of 5 minutes and I was in heaven. The struts even have alligator type quick connectors so I can take them off and replace them without having to dremel cut the sockets off. So, if anyone is considering doing this I have the eBay pair with quick disconnects that I'll sell you for what I paid and give you tips on how not to remove your old ones.

PRESIDENT'S CORNER (continued)

We had another successful weekend of people fawning over the changes on Stacey's car. We helped some good friends open their comic book store in Thornton and Stacey debuted her new Wonder Woman costume. If you haven't seen it yet it's pretty awesome (or I'm sure she'd be glad to show you photos at the next meeting). At the end of the week we're helping promote a $100k fundraiser for a montessori school in Denver and the Batmobile is supposed to pick up a certain VIP CEO from the airport within the next month. Lots of exciting things happening!!

TO THE BATMOBILE!

Circumstances over time have left me with only one raggedy copy of a book I wrote about the Datsun.

I'll pay decent money for non-trashed copies. Please contact me by email at bentonaero@qwest.net and let me know what you have.

Thank you,
